Equity Organization Is Beneficial to the Farmers

The Cache County Farmers' Society of Equity has climbed to a position of prominence in the commercial life of Logan and Cache Valley in the short period of three years that is almost unbelievable. The business done this year, will, undoubtedly, be well in excess of last year's business, and under the able management of Joseph G. Salisbury its future is bright indeed. Incorporated in 1914 with a paid up capital stock of $20,000 at the par value of $5 per share, the volume of business done was almost three times the capital stock.

The Equity handles all kinds of farm machinery, implements and equipment, deals in hay, lumber, cement and grain. The farmers are able to buy their farm necessities at a price lower than that paid to the dealers not organized for the farmers' protection.

The principle of this concern is The Rochdale system of patronage dividend, which in brief is this: To sell to the farmers at a small margin of profit, adequate however, to pay its expenses of operation and 10 per cent on the capital stock, all over and above this nominal amount is divided among the members which at present numbers 319. However, one need not be a member of the society to get the advantage of their system of selling agricultural necessities at a saving to the farmer.

A one price system is also maintained by Manager Salisbury, which assures all fair and honest dealings and all the agriculturists of this section enjoy doing business with the Equity.

The society occupies the large frame structure on South Main street but the energetic and capable management of the business has produced such results that the company intends the coming year to build a commodious new home on the present site.

During the year the company has handled car load lots of lumber, cement, hay and grain, and intend the coming year to continue this policy of handling all kinds of farm produce and necessities.

It will become more and more a clearing house for the farmer to enable him to both buy and sell to the greatest possible advantage.

Its membership is drawn from every section of the county and has for its president one of the most prominent and successful farmers of the state, Bishop Andrew L. Hyer, of Lewiston. The directorate is likewise made up of some of the county's most substantial citizens.

With such able officers, such energetic management and such a policy, who can doubt that this institution is destined to become one of the greatest business houses of the state.

Farmers who chop wood to save coal this winter will be making the chips fly for freedom.

BRIGHAM MONSON MANAGER MONSON LUMBER COMPANY

Richmond, like most of the other towns in Cache Valley, boasts of an up-to-date lumber yard. The Monson Lumber Company is one of the oldest lumber companies in the valley. They originally conducted a large saw mill at Franklin. Those interests are now centered in Richmond and Brigham Monson is in charge of the yards. He is a practical architect as well as a lumberman, and is able to assist his patrons in the planning of their building, which he does with the greatest of pleasure. He recommends to the people of the valley to present to their families a new home for Christmas present. He will plan the home and give the estimates on the cost of the lumber and material to go into it. The idea is a good one.

The Bald Eagle.

Our national bird, the bald eagle, wild in its native haunts, is so large, so majestic, and flies with an evidence of so enormous strength, that one is impressed with the thought that here is the king of birds. On one occasion while eating my lunch in the shade of a little bush on a Southern prairie, I saw one carry off a lamb, writes T. Gilbert Pearson of the Audubon society.

Laughing at Trouble.

"When a man tells you to laugh at trouble," said Uncle Eben, "he always means your troubles are not his."
